

The Dreamers

Ruben grew up in Mexico, and Cassandra in the United States. We had different childhoods, but both of us, had teachers, who were colorfully dressed and would read dramatically to their students. They imparted not only knowledge but a zest of life. The materials were collected from nature and discarded items from the landfill, it's important to have a clean world and connect with nature. Day of the Dead is a tradition to not be sad, but to remind us to laugh at La Muerte! In this way, we can remember our loved ones, and someday those who come after us, will remember us.
